A self led tour of Stourhead.

Stourhead is a 1,072-hectare (2,650-acre) estate^[2] at the source of the River Stour in the southwest of the English county of Wiltshire, extending into Somerset. The Stourton family had lived at the Stourhead estate for 500 years^[3] until they sold it to Sir Thomas Meres in 1714. The lake at Stourhead is artificially created. Following a path around the lake is meant to evoke a journey similar to that of Aeneas's descent into the underworld.
